Are you interested in building sustainability and don't know where to start?

Latitude Compliance is demystifying sustainability and regenerative research by applying it straight into the building application with our Building Sustainability Research Internship Program. By supporting and encouraging young professionals in their education, our company promotes an exchange of innovated research and transparent discussions of the latest technologies, research, and legislation for regenerative energy and carbon capture sequestration methods. Our Research Team for Summer 2021 was carefully chosen for their individual talents, expertise, and passion for the future of a resilient net-zero built environment.

Join us for their final presentation to learn more about Global Climate Policy, Geothermal Heat Pumps, Solar Energy, Nuclear Energy, and Carbon Capture. Come support your friends and family, and learn something new!
